THE HORRIBLE DEPARTMENT. We find the above paragraph in several of our exchanges. It reminds us of the increasing tendency to crime in this country, if we Jan. may judge by the "horrible department" of the press. Scarcely a paper do we take up without finding half a dozen cases reported, of the "horrible." Murders, suicides, elope- Feb ments, and so forth, are gazetted to the reader, not so much from choice of the editor, as from the consciousness that such things are largely read. A gentleman who was news-editor of the Richmond Whig, when it was under the control of Edward William Johnston, told us once that Johnston was frequently in the habit of asking him "if he had served up a dish of horrors" for the mor- Apr row's paper. He knew that such things were looked for. Probably the press, by a combined movement, could correct the publie taste in this respect-but the misfortune is there can be unanimity among the profes- May 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 sion. We doubt if Bennett would have taken a thousand dollars cash for his profits on his papers containing the longdrawn-out report of the Burdell case in New York.—Chicago

BETROTHALS.

We are informed that they are introducing a new and interesting fashion in Cincinnati, J'ly which, perhaps, may become generally prevalent, for fashions must begin sometime and somewhere. It is nothing less than the celebration of betrothals, or engagements between young people, by the giving of a party and inviting guests as to weddings. This is many and some other parts of Europe it is quite the custom. After the betrothal, the young lovers have certain privileges tion of the Justices for each term during the accorded to them which would not otherwise be permitted. We rather think the plan would be popular if once got into vogue. These betrothals are sometimes even announced in the newspapers, and should it become a regular custom, the ladies and gentlemen will then seize the newspapers with as much eagerness to find who is betrothed as they now do to read the marriages and deaths .- Warrenton Flag.

An unusual scene occurred at the doors of | English. the Paris Opera House on Christmas night. The second bal masque of the season had been announced for Saturday, December 25. and, it being holyday time, a more than usually large number of persons had made arrangements to go. In the course of the day, however, the Government came to the decission that a masked ball on Christmas day was not a proper thing. The countermand was posted on the doors of the Opera House at Harper. about three in the afternoon, but so litthat from ten to twelve in the evening carriages were continually driving up to the doors and to the Passage de l'Opera, and setting down dominoes, Pierrets, and fancy masquers in infinite variety. The disappointment was great, and in many instances | Buckingham. loud complaints were uttered. Few of the revellers, however, went home; they distributed themselves for the most part among the less renowned ball rooms of the metropolis, such as the Salle St. Cecille, Valentino, and the Prado, and managed to have a jolly time in spite of Church or State.

The Emperor and Empress (says the Paris correspondent of the Times of December 27) visited the Grand Opera in the Rue Lepelletier last night. The precautions observed on these occasions since the attentat of last the 2d Monday. January were not neglected. The entrance to the Rue Lepelletier by the Boulevards, which used formerly to be lighted up with gas, as also the Court-tailor's highly-ornamented frontage, was dark, but the facade of the theatre was lighted. For some time before their Majesties' arrival the street was completely cleared, no one allowed to pass, and the groups of people standing near the entrance were made to fall back to some distance, so as to leave a considerable space between them and the side-passage of the street .-Their Majesties arrived at half-past eight o'clock. They were accompanied by an escort. There was no cheering on their com-

The love of fun is not unknown among the serious-looking Chinamen, who are thickly collected in some parts of the Australian colonies. A storekeeper wishing to advertise his articles in the Chinese language engaged a course it would be an enticing one. It did not answer his expectations, however, for the only perceptible effect it had on the relations of the sun and moon was to excite a grin of the broadest dimensions. By a considerable bribe he obtained a translation in English of the advertisement, and found it to be as follows: "Don't buy any thing here-storekeeper a rogue."

A servant girl, on leaving her place, was accosted by her master as to her reason for "Mistress is so quick tempered that I cannot live with her," said the girl. "Well," said the gentleman, "you know it is no sooner begun than it's over."

"Yes, sir, and no sooner over than begun
